MONEY HUNT

The college of Southern Illinois in Rome, which is to be drawn up and searched by the Rome police in an effort to locate the $250,000 for Mrs. Kelleher received from insurance following the six mysterious deaths in her family.

The police are working on the theory that the money which Mrs. Kelleher received is hidden in Romeville in some one of the houses in which she lived, and the men exerting all their strength to find out where the cash is.

When they say that question they believe that the mystery which now surrounds the case will finally disappear.

The police believe that only two things are probable in regard to the money. They believe that either the money is buried in a cellar or hidden in some cellar, wall, or some person is holding the cash. That Mrs. Reiter knew where the money is the police believe. They have tried in vain to make her tell where it is.

OUR CONTEST VOTE PARTIES

From party given in Miami, Fla., to the arrival of Maury in New York, Mrs. Kelleher in an effort to get light on the insurance money.

From their investigation they are sure of one thing—that Mrs. Kelleher did not spend the money which she received from insurance. They learned that she had once several hundred dollars, despite the fact that her husband earned a good salary, and that she herself was a money maker.

In addition to trying to locate the money the police are striving to find out where Mrs. Kelleher was when the shooting took place.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET AND LATE FINANCIAL NEWS OF THE WORLD

BEARS DRIVE DOWN COPPER

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—While the general market was declining as the result of a bear attack during early trading in Wall street today, heavy sales continued to demand and advanced nearly two points each. Texas & Pacific also held its own and advanced nearly a point.

In the attempt to drive down the price of the last Amalgamated copper was used as the club and heavy sales of it resulted in a decline of a point. The bear had a depressing effect on the balance of the day and some averaging a point were reported. At the end of the first half hour, however, it is believed that the market was not so far from the closing figures of yesterday.

Articles of New York copper stock this morning seemed to indicate that the market was not so far from the closing figures of yesterday. The price of this stock, which has been the price of the profit taking.

On the London market American shares were irregular with a good demand for demand for Devereux shares.

In the New York stock market trading was light with the copper showing fair. Some heavy, scattered sales were reported. Copper was active.

MARKET DULL, BUT STEADY

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

The bond market at today's opening had a firm tone, with trading quite dull. Quilley was one point above last night's close, but the sale was of only twenty shares and looked like a market order. Franklin and Old Dominion were unchanged. American Tobacco advanced 1/2 while the other bonds were steady.

Amalgamated, which sold at 7 1/2, declined to 7 1/4, as the bond trading was depressed. The price of the bond trading was depressed. The price of the bond trading was depressed.

The copper was weak and American irregular.

BRISTOW WOULD JAIL MONEY KINGS

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

BRISTOW, Jan. 28.—Accepting the United States Senatorship from Kansas, formally voted to him by the Legislature, Senator Joseph L. Bristow, analyzed the methods used by E. H. Harrison and his associates in the Alton case as "criminal," and declared "The men who are guilty of such high-handed operations should face imprisonment for their crimes."

FIVE REASONS WHY MEN AND WOMEN MARRY ~ By LILLIAN BELL

WHEREAS men and women marry for five reasons, the first of which is the desire to have a companion. The second is the desire to have a home. The third is the desire to have a family. The fourth is the desire to have a career. The fifth is the desire to have a life.

Woman's Choice Limited

WOMEN have a choice of five reasons for marrying. They may marry for love, for money, for companionship, for a home, or for a career. They may marry for any or all of these reasons, or they may marry for no reason at all.

- 1. For love, which includes those who marry for love.
- 2. For companionship, which includes those who marry for companionship.
- 3. For a home, which includes those who marry for a home.
- 4. For a career, which includes those who marry for a career.
- 5. For a life, which includes those who marry for a life.

Those who marry for money.

Those who marry for money are the most common of all. They marry for money because they want to live in comfort and luxury. They want to have a home and a family. They want to have a career and a life.

Those who marry for companionship.

Those who marry for companionship are the next most common. They marry for companionship because they want to have a friend and a companion. They want to have a home and a family. They want to have a career and a life.

Those who marry for a home.

Those who marry for a home are the next most common. They marry for a home because they want to have a place to live. They want to have a home and a family. They want to have a career and a life.

Those who marry for a career.

Those who marry for a career are the next most common. They marry for a career because they want to have a job and a career. They want to have a home and a family. They want to have a career and a life.

Those who marry for a life.

Those who marry for a life are the next most common. They marry for a life because they want to have a life and a life. They want to have a home and a family. They want to have a career and a life.

The Only Road to the Land of Better Things

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

NOTHING more time and trouble is more quickly than looking for a better position in life. Look at any business, or in any other line, and you will find that the people who are successful are the people who have a better position in life. They have a better position in life because they have a better position in life.

HOOKING ON BEHIND

If Cupid really and truly made magic love-cakes, and ran a baker's wagon, you'd see all the little Bettys out hikin' after him, dragging their pretty petticoats in the mud, their hats on one ear, like any little smudgy-faced archers a tryin' to 'hook on behind.'

Public Schools Will NOT Teach Fighting

The School Should Develop the BRAIN, Not the Bristle. There's Fighting Enough in the World

The object of the public school is to eliminate brutality by developing the brains of children.

Public schools try to do systematically with ALL of the children what the mother for centuries has done with her individual child. The schools and the mothers are on earth to teach gentleness, reason, friendly argument, and to eliminate the blow that takes the place of thought.

Exercise in the public schools, gymnastics, running, jumping, good-natured wrestling, we should have by all means. The children's bodies should be cared for as carefully as the brain. The healthy brain must live in a healthy body to produce healthy work.

But public school money will not teach the children to fight. The public school system will not encourage in dignity the big, pug-nacious boy, or humiliate the timid, gentle or delicate boy.

One first-class public school bully, champion in boxing, might destroy the courage, the self-confidence of the weak lad. A LAD DESTINED IN FUTURE TO DO TEN MILLION TIMES AS MUCH VALUABLE WORK AS THE BULLY COULD EVER DO.

The public schools represent civilization, and progress, AND KNOWLEDGE, and health.

Boxing, it will be argued, is better than stabbing or shooting. So it is, and the cat-o-nine-tails is better than the rack or the thumb-screw. But no cat-o-nine-tails and NO FIGHTING, either with fists or knives, are the ideals at which the public schools aim.

Parents that want to make their boys boxers are at liberty to do so, but they can't do it in the public schools.

Parents that want to make their children Quakers, or Hindoos, or Mahomedans, or followers of any other religion, are at liberty to do so, but under our constitution, which forbids the public recognition of religion, THAT CANNOT BE TAUGHT IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS. Fighting and religious teaching are equally foreign to a public school curriculum. The public schools ARE MODERN, EXPRESSING THE THOUGHT BORN WITH THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE IN THIS COUNTRY. In the public schools all boys are equal in the teacher's sight, all religions are equally entitled to respect. COLD KNOWLEDGE, INDEPENDENT OF FAITH AND BELIEF, AND SCIENTIFIC HYGIENE—THOSE ARE THE THINGS WITH WHICH THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OCCUPY THEMSELVES AND ALWAYS WILL OCCUPY THEMSELVES.

And whoever tries to use the public school to further a particular religion, or any particular idea, apart from education and health, will fail and may as well be reconciled to that fact.

Box at home, if you want to; study religion at home—life without religion is barren—but in the public schools you will get only health and knowledge and the American principles of REPUBLICANISM and EQUALITY.

Incidentally, let us add, the parent who does not send his children to the public schools, he will remember, deprives those children of their best chance in life and handicaps them from the start. In America DO AS THE AMERICANS DO. Bring your children up as democrats, with the children of the rich and the poor mixed together on the public school bench. THEN THEY HAVE A CHANCE TO SUCCEED AS AMERICANS. The pampered child of the private school is at a disadvantage.

A New View of Marriage

Here Is a Lady Who Says the State
Must Pay It If It Insists Upon Family Life

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal Examiner

We publish here a letter from Jane W. Strong, whose story has been told in this newspaper:

I noticed an editorial on "Un-civilized Babies," or an attack on the attitude I have taken in attempting to annul my marriage under the thirtieth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which prohibits the existence of involuntary servitude anywhere in the Republic.

The reason I have applied for this under a national instead of a State law is because the latter gives no adequate remedy for my condition, and because all our marriage laws are wholly in conflict with the fundamental principle of the Republic.

I am anxious to focus the attention of American women upon my attitude, which I have labored from your teachings more than from any other source.

Women do not mind the martyrdom of noninterference willingly ignoring the fact that wifehood subjects more of their sex to invalidism and death each year than soldiers have been subjected to by the combined wars of one hundred and thirty-two years, but object to ushering into the world creatures foredoomed to want, misery and despair. I maintain the States are not parties to the marriage contract, and that in order for them to become such they must pension every woman who becomes a mother against her will—meaning thereby that if women are coerced to remain married against their will (and thereby risk health and life in service of the State) they must be pensioned for becoming mothers.

JANE W. STRONG.

We are glad to hear from Jane W. Strong. Her appeal to the national government for divorce is as interesting as it is original.

Certainly, she is right in saying that women bear the brunt in our fight to keep the race alive on this whirling planet.

And certainly there is a great deal to be said in favor of rewarding the mother who makes the soldier, and honoring her, as you reward and honor the soldier himself.

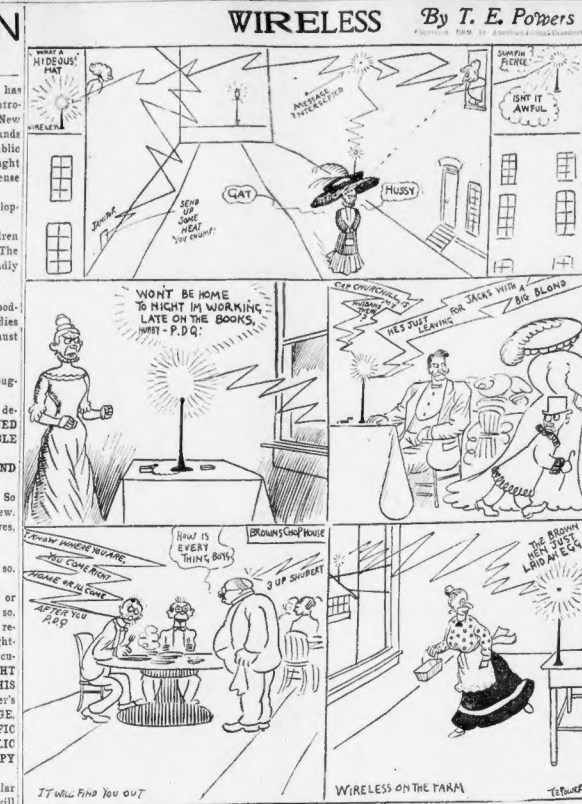

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

IS THIS JUSTICE?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
How long is it since the police of Boston was empowered to act as judge and jury? On the corner of Irving street and Shawmut street, in office that was had been struck by a bomb. The officer questioned her, but her face just now, streets, disquieted the young man and dropped the matter, although the woman said she wanted to enter a complaint. Is this justice as dealt in London? Is it of more hold court on street corners?
Barnaby.

"DOESN'T SEEM POSSIBLE."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
It doesn't seem possible that two large ships could come together in the fog with whistles both sounding frequently. I can scarcely believe they could come within two feet of each other without each knowing the other's presence. Some "what" when they were so close together. "We were so close together," it is said. "But it seems not. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom." A few lines of ships. Laws of navigation should be enforced or something should be done.
Barnaby.

There's a Reason

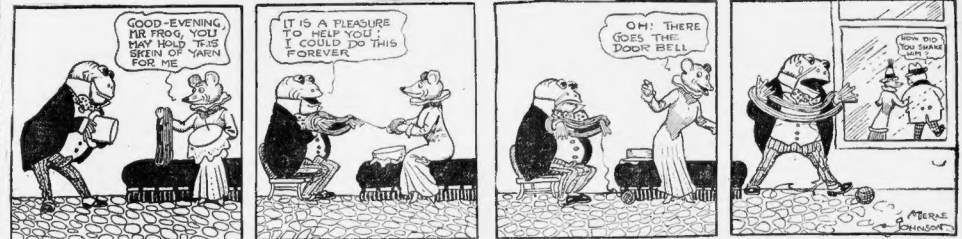

THE KEY

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

All that I craved belonged to me; Right in my heart, I carried it. God held the gifts and I the key; He held them, waiting my command. And yet I would not succumb. In perfidious and discontent. Full many a wasted year was spent. I cried, "How cruel is the fate. That bids me work and weep and wait for things which make life worth the living. Nor rob the giver in the giving. A little joy, a little wealth. Enough for me, abundant health! A chance to do, a chance to be— And then I looked and saw the key!"
